

Lulu Keating As a filmmaker for many years, Canadian Lulu Keating won awards and travelled to film festivals around the world. Now, instead of screenplays, she's writing novels and short stories.

Her literary work has been published in Geist Magazine, Parallelogram, The Globe and Mail, and North of Ordinary. In her hometown, Dawson City Yukon (settled during the Klondike Goldrush) the prize for her story was a gold nugget. Keating's collection of short stories, Splinter and Shard, was published by ECW Press in May 2024 and is available in bookstores and through Amazon. She continues to work on two novels, Klondike Codfish and Astrid's Vision.
